

Call for Papers

European System of Central Banks' Day-Ahead Conference
Lisboa, Portugal
August 20, 2017

The European System of Central Banks (ESCB) will hold a Day-Ahead Conference on Sunday August 20, 2017 in Lisboa, Portugal. This is one day prior to the Annual Congress of the European Economic association and the European Meeting of the Econometric Society which will be held in Lisboa on August 21-25. The Day Ahead Conference will to be sponsored and hosted onsite by the Banco de Portugal (BdP).

The objective of the Day-Ahead conference is to create an opportunity for interaction among research economists within the ESCB, other central banks and academia; and to offer an outlet for present high-quality, policy-relevant research oriented towards banking, finance, and monetary economics.

We encourage the submission of theoretical or empirical research papers in, but not restricted to, the following areas:

- Banking and financial regulation;
- Contagion, systemic risk, and tail risk;
- Monetary policy;
- Macroprudential policy;
- Macrofinance;
- Design and governance of payment systems;
- The impact of and interactions between monetary, fiscal, and/or financial stability policies;
- Fiscal and/or financial stability policy in a monetary union.

The submission deadline for the Day Ahead Conference is Friday, March 15 and decisions will be made in the first week of April. Submissions for the Day-Ahead will be accepted by email. Please send your email with subject heading "Day Ahead Conference 2017" to conferences@bportugal.pt. Papers are preferred, but extended abstracts may also be considered.

Program Committee:

Hyun Shin (BIS)
Isabel Correia (Banco de Portugal)
João Santos (Federal Reserve Bank of New York)
Kasper Roszbach (Riksbank)
Luc Laeven (European Central Bank)
Oscar Arce (Banco de España)
Wilko Bolt (Dutch Central Bank)