- The Global Financial Cycle and emerging countries
- Macroprudential and capital control policies: theory and empirical evidence
- Fear of floating, foreign reserves accumulation, and exchange rate intervention
- Optimal policy responses to financial crises and sudden stops
- Interactions of financial stability policies with conventional monetary policy in emerging economies
- Spillovers and international coordination of macroprudential policies
- Impact of macroprudential policies on financial development, investment, and growth
- Consequences of fiscal adjustments for monetary and financial policies
- Amplification of commodity price shocks through financial channels

- Consequences of heterogeneity in access to credit for monetary and financial policy
- Optimal communication strategies for financial and macro-prudential policies
- Model uncertainty and optimal monetary/financial policy in emerging economies

Submission Process, Rules, and Timeline

- Please send an electronic version of the paper in PDF format to ConferenceCBC-IDB@bcentral.cl. There is no charge for submissions. The deadline for submissions is November 15, 2019.
- A submitted paper must not be under review at another journal or at the JIE, nor can it be considered for submission if previously rejected by the JIE. Likewise, while under consideration by the conference or for the JIE special volume, a paper may not be submitted to another journal (or the JIE) until the author has been notified.
- Submissions will be reviewed by the conference program committee. Paper selection will be finalized, and authors notified by December 15, 2019.
